Mother May I?

Sunday, May 13 is Mother's Day in the United States, Australia, and Canada. In Mexico, Día de las Madres is Thursday, May 10. In France, La Fête des Mères is Sunday, May 27. After Christmas and Easter, Mother's Day is the third-most celebrated holiday in the world, but the way mothers are honored differs from place to place.

In the United States, the most typical gift given to mom is a Mother's Day card and flowers. It may come as no surprise that the vast majority of Mother's Day cards—80% in fact—are not bought by men but by women. A mother's job is never done, it seems, not even on Mother's Day.

Mother's Day wasn't always celebrated by buying cards, flowers, chocolates, and jewelry. It was Anna Jarvis who fought to establish the national holiday. Jarvis was inspired largely by her own mother, who had organized "Mother's Day work clubs," where women would tend to soldiers wounded during the Civil War and tackle problems that led to infant mortality. Indeed, Jarvis proposed Mother's Day as a day to honor women like her mother, who had played greater political roles for the benefit of society. She was disgusted when her holiday turned into a commercial bonanza for those hawking flowers and candy. Jarvis spent her life fighting what Mother's Day had become.

In most countries these days, Mother's Day is celebrated by showering gifts and attention on mom. In Mexico, it is tradition on Día de las Madres to serenade mom in the morning before church and then prepare dinner for her. France's La Fête des Mères originated as a way for the French government to honor the mothers of large families with a gold medal. It was a means to encourage French women to have more children and repopulate the country after World War I. By the 1950s, consumer appeal and a rising birth rate transformed the holiday into one more commercially aligned with the United States. And why not take one day out of the year to recognize their vital importance?

Lucky Lindy

On May 20, 1927, Charles Lindbergh pointed his Spirit of St. Louis airplane down the runway of Roosevelt Field, Long Island, and 33 1/2 hours later he landed in Paris, France. A crowd of 100,000 greeted him as a hero. Lindbergh had become the first person to fly solo across the Atlantic Ocean. Before becoming a national hero, Lindbergh was a mail pilot. He had heard of a promotion, offered by a New York hotelier: the first person to fly from New York to Paris would be awarded a prize of $25,000. Many attempted the flight and failed, but Lindbergh would succeed. He supervised the building of a custom plane. With four sandwiches, two canteens of water, and 451 gallons of gas, he made the flight and etched his name into the history books.

Dreaming of a White Christmas

Bing Crosby had no idea that on May 29, 1942, his recording of Irving Berlin's "White Christmas" would become the world's most popular song. The recording took Crosby just 18 minutes, as part of an album for the movie musical Holiday Inn, and neither he nor Berlin thought the song was a hit. However, it went on to win the Academy Award for Best Original Song, and it hit number one on the pop charts in October of 1942, two months before Christmas. Irving Berlin, as a Jewish-American, did not celebrate Christmas, but he sure knew how to write a hit song, even one without any mention of magical characters or religion. The song's slow and melancholy longing for the cozy holidays of yesteryear was what audiences craved. What really propelled the song to superstardom was its inclusion on Armed Forces Radio. GIs fighting overseas during World War II loved the song, and Crosby performed it regularly for them. Audiences still love "White Christmas." With over 100 million copies sold worldwide, it remains the best-selling song of all time.
