Ms. Joan is affectionately known by us (her 5 grandchildren, 10 great-grandchildren, and 10 great-great-grandchildren) as "Ninny" or "Ninny-Belle". She is our sweet, funny, and spunky grandmother with so many qualities that we absolutely adore! She entertains us with stories, songs, and jokes. One of the things I love and have fond memories of growing up are the songs Ninny would sing for us. We never lived in the same town and often not even in the same state, so getting to visit was a treat we looked forward to. Two of my most favorite songs she sang were "John-Jacob-Jingleheimer-Schmidt" and "Keebo-Kybo-Kay". There is something about how she used a different, lower voice whenever she sang these. We loved singing along with her and trying to remember the words. They are such funny songs that made us giggle every time we heard them. They are the kind of songs that get stuck in your head and you keep singing them for hours! We thought these were common songs that everyone's grandparents sang. It makes it more special that it was just ours, but when we found out that our friends didn't know them, we tried to teach them. We quickly learned that they sounded best how our Ninny sang them.

Ninny and her two sisters used to convene during our family gatherings and sing and perform for the family. As Ninny tells it, her sisters were the singers and they just included her to be nice. They called themselves the Wit Sisters (Dim, Nit and Half). I feel like the family gathering performances were a glimpse into how they grew up...full of silliness, fun, and gathered with family!

Ninny is also an amazing storyteller and has a huge sense of humor! One of my favorite stories to hear her tell is about how she and my Granddad met in a bar and got married soon after meeting. That union lasted 60 years until Granddad passed away. I could listen to her tell this story over and over. It's cute how her face lights up and she loves to see and hear people's reaction. It doesn't matter how or where you meet, as long as you meet the right person.

Ninny loves to make people laugh and she has a way with making friends with just about anyone. She is such a special lady, and we are extremely grateful to have her as our Ninny!

Ninny, we love you!!!
